Scheme specific- RMSE
1	Will the scheme include MSME loans purchased from NBFCs in last one year (e.g., direct assignment)?	The scheme could include MSE loans purchased (direct assignment) from NBFCs (originated by the NBFCs assigning the loans).
2	Working capital facility is renewed yearly where in the existing limit gets renewed with either addition or reduction depending on the business requirement and eligibility of the MSE borrower. The actual usage of limits is typically between 60-80% and reaches 100% depending on the seasonality of the industry. For such clients should we avail refinance against limit or outstanding?	The scheme allows to avail refinance against the outstanding only.
3	Scenario: A client has Rs.5 crore outstanding prior to 12 months and availed incremental Rs.2 crore loan in last one year. What will be the eligible amount under refinance for such client? Is it Rs.7 crore or Rs.2 crore?	The scheme allows the outstanding loans, which were disbursed during the previous 12 months from the date of refinance application.
4	Whether loan disbursed by a bank where the interest rate is linked to EBLR viz. T-Bill, Repo rate, G-Sec rate, etc. are eligible for refinance.	Yes, provided the final lending rate charged to the end MSE borrower is falling within the applicable interest rate cap (i.e., interest rate up to 350/450 bps over the "10-year G-Sec yield").
MSME Classification Related
1	The MSMEs in wholesale trade and related distribution services etc. have difficulty obtaining Udyam Registration Certificate (URC) even if they meet the composite criteria of turnover and investment in equipment. Can we avail refinance against such borrowers?	Govt. of India guidelines on URC need to be complied with.
2	Further, the circulars talk about the definition of MSEs as per the Gazette notification by Gol dated 26-June- 2020. For advances given in Dec- 2019, the definition of MSEs is as per the old definition basis investment in plant & machinery. Will these advances given under such definition be eligible for refinance under RMSE?	Yes

Clarifications regarding Refinance schemes

Operational (Working Capital related)
1	Will overdraft (OD) facility be eligible for Refinance. The guidelines mention refinance is for Term loan & working capital while Overdraft is a part of working capital facility.	OD facility extended to the MSE borrowers is eligible for refinance as this is a working capital product. It may be noted that all the other fund based working capital products are also eligible.
2	In OD Facility client is given a limit and he can withdraw up to limit and also on some occasion the drawdown could be nil. For purpose of this refinance, we are only taking OD which has outstanding balance as on date.	The outstanding of OD as on the date of submission of application to SIDBI is to be considered.
3	Working capital demand loan will have a tenor less than one year (as by definition they have to be of less than one year) which are generally allowed to be rolled over, so trust even they are eligible, while the refinance period could be greater than one year.	Most of the working capital products have a validity of one year and is renewed/rolled over on yearly basis.  Working capital demand loan also is on the same mechanics, hence the same is considered.
4	A client has Rs.5 crore Working Capital sanctioned limit, the outstanding was Rs.5 crore during the last FY. Now the limit is enhanced to Rs.7 crore and the outstanding is Rs.7 crore, what will be the eligible limit for refinance.	Since working capital loan is renewed every year, this will be treated as a sanction only, hence the eligible limit works out to `7 crore.  If the refinance was taken for the earlier outstanding of `5 crore, then only the incremental outstanding up to Rs.2 crore is eligible for the present refinance.
Operational (Term Loan related)
1	A client was sanctioned a term loan of Rs.5 crore and disbursed Rs.4 crore more than 12 months earlier. But the final Rs.1 crore was disbursed in the last 12 months and the outstanding as on date is Rs.4.5 crore. What will be the eligible limit for refinance?	If some disbursement has taken place in the previous 12 months and if the loan account was not covered under refinance during the past, the entire outstanding as on the date of application is eligible for refinance under MSERS.
